What are the tuition fees?

The tuition fees were 254€ for the academic year 2025/2026. All students are also asked to pay "CVEC" which stands for "Contribution Vie Etudiante et Campus", whose amount was 105€ in 2025/2026. Thus, each student was asked to pay 359€/year to enrol in the programme. The tuition fees for 2026/2027 should be nearly the same.

Which level of English is required?

A B2 level in English (at least) is required since the programme classes are in English and most of the master's students are non-French-speaking people.

When does the programme start?

The programme starts at the beginning of September.

What is the content of the master's programme?

The lectures and tutorials of our master's programme are given in English. The programme consists of 4 semesters (30 ECTS/semester). 3 of them are based on blended learning (classroom learning, self-study through e-learning, project- and problem-based learning). The last semester is devoted to an internship (minimum 16 weeks).

This webpage provides detailed information about the programme. Further information is available on this dedicated page of the Polytech Anancy-Chambéry website, in the section MASTER ADVANCED MECHATRONICS.

Are there any accommodation opportunities?

There is a wide variety of accommodation options available. You can find accommodation in the city or in the countryside, in a residence (public or private sector) or with a private individual, shared or private.

You will find information about accommodation in Anney, as well as on the free guarantee scheme (Visale platform) and the family allowance fund (CAF) on:

- this university guide (part1 in French and part2 in English)
- this CROUS (regional centre for university and school works) website
- this Campus France webpage
- this website of the city of Anney

Pay attention: As International students, you can apply for housing in a Crous student residence (rather cheap housing managed by a French public institution for students). However, you will only be able to apply during the additional phase for the allocation of remaining accommodation. You can apply for accommodation from July 7 2026 on this webpage.
